This "limousine" has been within enemy airspace for five minutes— no enemy anti-aircraft artillery or surface-to-air missile emplacements have been detected. We are successfully avoiding enemy detection

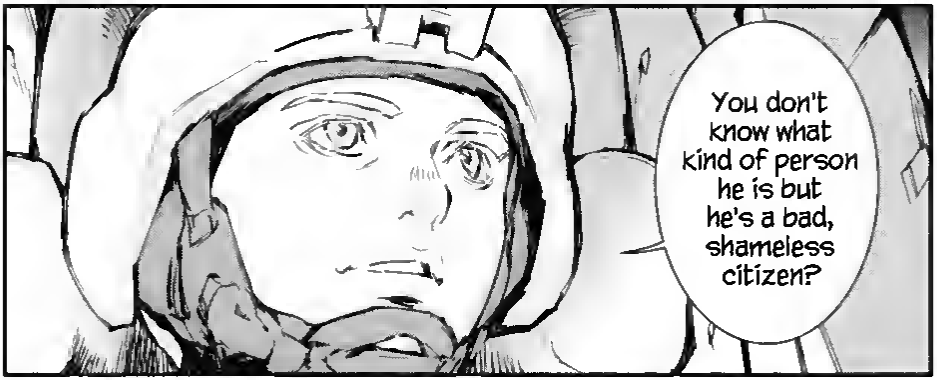
Let's get in our "Coffins".
We've got 10 minutes till descent.
.....
Simultaneous assassination of two targets is gonna be badass.
What do you think of the operation order this time...
Captain Shepherd.
The situation would've been strongly influenced by variables out of our control.
If they didn't show up at the target location together.....

There are Americans all over the world.
I'm talking about target B—the American.
That's not what I'm talking about.
What, you can kill the foreign scrawnies from other countries,
but you can't bring yourself to kill your... own people?
He has no shame.
Fellow citizen or not, he's a bad person. It doesn't bother me.
It feels like some important information intentionally was left out.
But anyway, that target profile is weird.

They can't build an image of what Target B is like.
"I have no idea what kind of person this guy was."
Everyone's saying the same thing—



You don't know what kind of person he is but he's a bad, shameless citizen?

We, the Special Scouts i Detachment Squad, are assassins who defeat the bad guys.

That's a simplistic world view you've got, Williams...
But if it keeps you healthy, then I guess you should keep it simple.
If he's the kind of person who needs to be killed,
then the world must consider him a villain.

Prepare for ejection!

Alex,
